The Portuguese are losing the war in Guinea. The P.A.I.G.C. now controls over two-thirds of the national territory. In the liberated areas they have created a new socialist society, with highly organised education programmes, medical services, co-operative agriculture and commerce in spite of constant attacks from the NATO backed Portuguese army.

AMILCAR CABRAL, found and leader of PAIGC is one of Africa's leading revolutionaries. His importance to the struggle in the whole continent is not only the practical victory which PAIGC has achieved over the Portuguese Colonialists, but his theoretical works which are read, followed, and respected not only in African but in the whole revolutionary world.
